Step back from brink in Bellevue

Our advice to the board and superintendent of Bellevue City Schools:

Step back a bit, dial it down a notch — and remember who you all work for.

The Bellevue City Schools Board of Education, which now includes a couple members who ran a won on the basis (in part, anyway) that they just plain didn't like the way Superintendent James Lahoski was running things, has told Lahoski they'll ask the questions, not him, at board meetings from now on.

Apparently they don't like the way he asks the questions;
